

Education, Training and Experience

My name is Nohemi, (she/her/ella) a child of immigrant parents from Aguascalientes and Zacatecas, Mexico. As a cis-gender mestiza woman who is bilingual and bicultural, I understand that my intersecting identities afford me areas of privilege. I am currently focusing on ways to center decolonization in my practice and focus on balancing individual context as well as social constructs and acknowledging the role intersectionality plays in our lived reality. I consider myself a life-long learner in all aspects.

I began my career as an advocate in 2010, working with individuals who experienced domestic violence, sexual assault and trafficking. In 2015, I graduated from Pacific University with an MA in Counseling Psychology and since then have worked in community mental health. I am a Licensed LPC working toward becoming a certified Somatic Experiencing Practitioner. <https://traumahealing.org/>. As a Licensee of the Oregon Board of Licensed Professional Counselors and Therapists, I abide by its Code of Ethics. To maintain my license, I am required to participate in continuing education.

Philosophy and Approach

My approach is experiential and rooted in a somatic, attachment-based, and emotion focused lens. It is collaborative in the sense that you are your own healer and I support you on your journey. I believe in the power of storytelling and that our lived experience includes the stories we tell about ourselves as well as what happens inside. We carry a mix of joy, pain, love and suffering that sometimes makes life challenging, and at times we can feel stuck. I believe we have the capacity for growth, healing and transformation despite these challenges, and therapy is one way to help us address them.

I strive to offer you a relational space free of judgment where you can explore change that makes sense for you. My goal is to develop your capacity for ease, compassion, laughter, joy and connection.

Modalities: Somatic Experiencing, Attachment-Based, Internal Family Systems, Mindfulness, Cognitive Behavioral Therapy, Dialectical Behavioral Therapy, Motivational Interviewing, Emotion Focused, Strengths Based, Trauma-Informed, Harm Reduction approach.

I work with adults 18+.

Client-Therapist Relationship

You and your therapist have a professional relationship existing exclusively for therapeutic treatment. This relationship functions most effectively when it remains strictly professional and involves only the therapeutic aspect. Your therapist can best serve your needs by focusing solely on therapy and avoiding any type of social or business relationship. Gifts are not appropriate, nor is any sort of trade of services.

Social Media

Due to the importance of your confidentiality and the importance of minimizing dual relationships, I do not accept friend or contact requests from current or former clients on any social networking site (Facebook, LinkedIn, etc.). I believe that adding clients as friends or contacts on these sites can compromise your confidentiality and our respective privacy. It may also blur the boundaries of our therapeutic relationship. If you have questions about this, please bring them up when we meet and we can talk more about it.
